Additional Information:

There are millions of records that have been created over the centuries. Of those millions of records, only about 17% are available to search online. If we are unable to locate records for your project we will hire a researcher on the ground to work on your behalf. The weakest record sets are for states in the middle of the United States.

Lawson Research Services (LRS) is sometimes called in to verify family groups after an heir search firm has been working on the probate file. LRS will gladly review this work for you. Our number one goal is to make sure that no one is missed regardless of who found the records to build the family tree. The heir-search firms can forward to you copies of documents they used to prove the lines. Please forward those to LRS for use in reviewing the work.

How long will the research take? We won't know until we get into the work on your case. Some are resolved very quickly. Some have very common surnames and will take much longer to prove out. Each case is unique.
